

A COWORKING SPACE AT BANANI, DHAKA

How co-working has changed the corporate landscape

Located in the heart of Dhaka, Banani is perched business hub of Bangladesh. Dhaka has become financial as well as industrial hub of Bangladesh. The metropolitan's economic development story began 400 hundred years back. Considering the development of this city, there is a high need for coworking space in Dhaka.

Importance of coworking space in Dhaka

Co-working as a concept has gained prominence in the last few years. It is a shared office space where people can come from different walks of life and work in a productive and collaborative environment. Since the city is a major financial and industrial centre for 98% of the companies, the office space for rent is very high. Also, renting a business centre in Dhaka with all the infrastructural facilities is difficult. Thanks to that, coworking space has become popular and resolved the crisis of business. Co-working is a shared office space concept where people from different walks of life can come together and work in a productive environment.

Coworking is all about convenience, so having a space that might be in an “up and coming” part of a city, but is inconvenient to commute to, might be detrimental to your prospective customers.

A few things to keep in mind when looking for a coworking space. *

While choosing a coworking space, there are four determinants- Facilities, Location, Network, and Working Environment.

Host Here And Feel Right At Home

Space to Wok/Create/Think/Grow

Work has never felt so good.

Private Office Suites with Direct Access at the Heart of Business Hub

Your fully furnished and equipped private office is fully staffed with a receptionist and technology support.

Whether you're an established enterprise or a scaling startup, find a coworking space that's right for you.

A complete compliant office space for YOU

We're people-first.

We're never too busy for each other. We capture every opportunity—no matter how small—to make those around us feel valued and connected. We ask “how are you?” before we ask “how's work today?”

We're growth-minded.

We are each mentors and mentees; coaches and in need of coaching. We know that our team has our back, so we're not scared of what we don't yet know. When we need help, we take it—and we generously share our expertise in return.

We're resilient.

We are self-motivated problem-solvers. We tenaciously get the job done — and bounce back better than ever — in spite of challenging or evolving circumstances.

We're purposeful.

We know that coworking excellence doesn't happen by chance. We take pride in how our unique area of responsibility advances the mission, and choose effectiveness over appearing "busy"—all while respecting boundaries for ourselves and others.

We believe in balance.

We recognize that we do our best work within a balanced life, so we strive to help each other live a life collage that we love. We cheer on each others' side hustles, encourage prayer facilities, and health issues on a serious note.

People & Places

Understandably, taking note of the location is one of the first things people do when they've been invited to an event. The selected space will undoubtedly evoke some sort of emotion - whether that's excitement, wonder or disappointment - and can ultimately decide whether the invited party thinks the event is worth paying for in time, money or both.

Accessibility is Essential

Inclusivity should be at the forefront of any organiser's mind when selecting the host space for your event. People come with any number of preferences and requirements, and some attendees will have extra needs when it comes to accessibility - so always ensure your event space has ample disabled access and parking. If you're ever unsure about access to a venue, it's always worth consulting an expert ahead of the day or at the initial stages of your search to make sure you don't exclude anyone within your target market.

Atmosphere

In the eyes of guests, the event experience begins from the moment they arrive at the venue - so it's important that the venue mirrors the atmosphere you're trying to build. Whether that be a clean-cut corporate meeting space or a stunning product launch venue with panoramic views of the city skyline, the space you choose is key to setting up the event for success.

Amenities, Amenities, Amenities

Nothing says "wrong choice of venue" quite like a lack of provisions for attendees. From toilets to catering choices, it's important to get the detail right so that the pieces can all fit together. When accommodating bigger crowds, the layout is a decisive factor affecting the 'people flow' around the venue.

And Branding Benefits- From exhibition stands to product displays, branding your event area will help get your business noticed and we are there for you to portray the best
